

Effect of Partition and Vector Length on Binary Search

Higher partition values yield faster searches at lower vector lengths

Each combination of vector length and partition value was tested 10,000 times to obtain these results